"There's no better time for Victoria to review how we've dealt with family violence," MP Fiona Phillips said. "When you look at the figures about family violence, they're alarming. "The most striking statistic is that one in five children have been exposed to domestic violence at some point in their lives." Many victims are children and young people who are being abused in their own homes by a relative. Victoria's Commissioner for Children and Young People, Kerryn Phelps, says the state has a long way to go. "What we need to do is to make sure that the children of Victoria are safe, and that the institutions that are protecting them from harm are safe," she said. "If there's one message from this, it's that children, particularly the most vulnerable children, need to be protected from harm
